POTTERS PLAN FINISH FIGHT AT NEW CASTLE

N. B. O. P. Convention Votes to Continue Strike.

HULL REPORTS Organizer Will Devote Attention to Sanitary Branch.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., July 6.—Potters are prepared to "fight to a finish" the strike at New Castle, Pa., it was announced today at the thirty-ninth annual convention of the National Brotherhood of Operative Potters.

Outlook Reported "Hopeful." The decision followed the report of Frank Hull, of East Liverpool, Ohio, national organizer, and later discussion of the labor trouble. The strike involved a dispute over work on the tunnel kiln where laborers were employed instead of skilled men at the plant of the Shenango Pottery company.

Hull, who has spent some time at New Castle where the strike has been in progress since last December, gave a detailed account of the situation. The ultimate result was declared to be "hopeful." It was reported here that support would be given by the American Federation of Labor.

Noon Adjournment Today. Hull, who resigned as seventh vice-president of the Brotherhood immediately after the last convention to become organizer, will devote his attention in the immediate future to the sanitary branch of the trade. The organization is optimistic over the prospect of a renewal of negotiations with the sanitary manufacturers who have refused to deal with the men since 1922.

Much of the business of the convention is in the hands of committees. The law committee, of which George Chadwick, of East Liverpool, second vice-president, is chairman, and resolutions committee, of which George H. Cartledge, of Trenton, first vice-president, is chairman, are the two groups to present the most important reports.

The convention adjourned at noon today until Monday morning.

50,000,000 Degrees.
100 Calls Per Second.
No Chinese Rum Wall.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE.

"LITTLE AMERICA," where Byrd in the Antarctic waits for spring and the sun to return, the temperature on July 3rd dropped to 64 below zero, and men "could hear their breath freezing" as it left them.

SIXTY-FOUR below, and 120 above zero we call "terrific" temperatures. Those figures emphasize the marvelous protection and safety we enjoy on this well-balanced earth.

On our journey to heaven, once we leave our atmosphere, our spirits will endure, for millions of light years, this "absolute zero" of the ether, hundreds of degrees below our zero.

And if we pass close to our sun we shall need to be prepared for heat from a furnace reaching 50,000,000 degrees of heat, centigrade.

READ Sir James H. Jeans' magnificent book, "Astronomy and Cosmogony," and learn, in the chapters on gaseous stars, and on "the source of stellar energy," what differences in temperature are possible.

After you have read that book and waded feebly through the four hundred pages, chiefly of abstruse mathematical formula, you will be glad to return to the happy level of average knowledge.

THE gigantic telephone company puts through 100 telephone calls, EVERY SECOND over New York city's 1,750,000 telephones.

MEN read that, and pass on taking for granted the greatest scientific miracle, and industrial achievement.

If the calls average only two miles, from telephone to telephone, the statement means that human thought and words are carried without effort, 17,200,000 miles in a month.

IT MEANS that all the transportation facilities could not carry to and fro, the millions that without moving, meet and talk on the telephone. The public owes a debt to inventive (Continued on page 6, column 6)

SCHOOL BOARD READY TO PLACE 175 TEACHERS

Contracts Probably Will Be Mailed Next Week.

MEETING PLANNED J. L. Clifton Explains Majority Can Elect Faculty.

Contracts will be mailed probably Monday or Tuesday, to 175 high school and elementary teachers whom the board of education, by a three-to-two vote, decided to employ about two weeks ago, it was indicated today.

Special meeting of the board of education probably will be held Monday or Tuesday night, President Fred O. Glenn announced.

Glenn said that he had received no reply from State Director of Education John L. Clifton, Columbus, to his inquiry relative to the legality of the board's three-to-two action in naming teachers in the absence of recommendations from a superintendent. A copy of Clifton's letter to Dr. Collin Kinney, another member of the board, was received by Glenn last week.

School Superintendent-elect Herbert G. Means, of North Braddock, Pa., is expected to move here about August 1. He will assume his duties on September 1. Clerical work in the superintendent's office is being handled by Miss Dorothy Calcott.

Glenn today telegraphed Clifton asking that he "give specific answer to questions" put to him recently regarding the legality of electing teachers by a three-to-two vote.

Clifton Points Lines of Action. COLUMBUS, O., July 6.—(INS)—J. W. Clifton, state educational director, announced here today that he has issued an opinion to the school board, at East Liverpool, pointing out two lines of action, either one of which, he said, they may adopt in completing the election of teachers for the schools there.

The first, Clifton explained, is for the board to rescind its former action, whereby it selected a superintendent for office next September, and to elect the superintendent to assume his duties immediately.

Then, Clifton pointed out, it would be the sole duty of the superintendent to submit nominations of teachers to the school board.

In event the first is not feasible, the state director declared the school board could elect teachers on a majority vote on the grounds that there is now no superintendent of schools at East Liverpool.

RAIN, WIND DELAY "UNTIN" BOWLER

CHICAGO, July 6.—(INS)—Rain, poor visibility, high winds and other unfavorable weather conditions today held the Chicago-to-Berlin plane, "Untin" Bowler at Great Whale, on the lower tip of Hudson's bay, awaiting better flying weather before proceeding to Port Burwell, Cape Chidley, according to messages received in Chicago from the pilots.

Behind schedule, Pilot Parker D. Cramer explained in a brief wireless dispatch that "bad weather" had delayed the progress yesterday. For more than 24 hours the plane had not been seen nor had messages from it been intercepted.

BOSTON DRUG RAIDS TRAP 20

Federal Agents and Police Seize Opium In Clean-up.

BOSTON, July 6.—(INS)—Boston's Chinatown was the scene of wild confusion early today as a score of federal narcotic agents aided by the Boston police raided six alleged opium joints, seizing large quantities of opium and making 20 arrests.

Narcotic raiders were armed with sledge hammers as well as search warrants and the entire Chinatown district for a time was a bedlam of confusion as doors were being broken down and partitions smashed in. Streets of the district were filled with excited Chinese.

The narcotic raiders, both federal and city, came into Chinatown in automobiles from federal headquarters. The places searched were raided simultaneously.

Those arrested were charged with possession of narcotic drugs or with being present where narcotic drugs were found. They were held for arraignment in municipal court.

Two white girls were among those taken, but they were later released. The opium and "layouts" seized were valued at thousands of dollars.

During the raids one of the sledge hammers bounded back injuring Special Officer Joseph McGovern.

Newcomb and Mitchell Set World's Record For Refueling Flight

With Both Men Exhausted by Strain, Big Blue Monoplane "City of Cleveland" Lands at 12:39:50 A. M. Today, 28 Minutes After Shattering Mark for Endurance Craft.

MOTOR O. K., BUT PHYSICAL CONDITION PROMPTS EX-ARMY SERGEANTS TO QUIT

"We Could go up in Same Plane Tomorrow and Set Another New Record Without Even Repairing Motor. Aviators Declare After Eclipsing Time Set at Fort Worth.

CULVER CITY, Cal., July 6.—(INS)—Still going strong, the Buhi air sedan, piloted by R. B. Reinhart and Loren Mendell, continued to hover above the airport here today in its assault upon the newly-established world's record of 174 hours and 59 minutes for sustained flying.

At 6 a. m., the plane had been aloft 94½ hours.

BY CARL L. TURNER
International News Service Staff Correspondent.
AIRPORT, CLEVELAND, Ohio, July 6.—Exhausted by the tremendous strain of their seven-day flight, Byron K. Newcomb and Roy L. Mitchell landed their big blue monoplane "City of Cleveland" at 12:39:50 today, 28 minutes after they had set a new world's record for refueling endurance flight.

The new record is 174 hours and 59 seconds, the longest period of time any men have remained aloft in sustained flight.

BOY DIES AFTER HE IS TRAMPLED BY MILLING CROWD AT AIRPORT

CLEVELAND, July 6.—(INS)—Four hours after he was trampled under the feet of milling thousands at the Cleveland airport when the endurance fliers landed, Steve Kusko, 16, died in a community hospital near the airport today from injuries.

At the airport where he was given emergency treatment it was reported that Kusko was trampled on by a horse. Hospital records, however, entered him as a victim of electrocution.

Thus far Kusko's death was the only fatality reported as resulting from the mob scene at the airport. More than a score were treated for minor injuries, but none was in serious enough condition to go to the hospital except Kusko.

"It wasn't the motor that brought us down," Mitchell told International News Service immediately after the landing. "It was our physical condition. We could go up in the same plane tomorrow and set another new record without even repairing the motor if we had recovered from the effects of the flight."

"The endurance record had been broken, so there was no reason to stay up longer when we were physically exhausted."

The fliers took off at 6:38:51 p. m. a week ago Friday. At 11:10:53 p. m., Eastern Standard time last night they equaled the former record set over Fort Worth, Texas, several months ago by Reginald Robbins and James Kelly. At 12:10:50 this morning, they officially set the new record.

Under National Aeronautical association rules, there must be at least one hour's difference between an old record and a new in order for the latter to be recognized.

The endurance plane received its

AIRMEN IN HIGH SPIRITS WHEN THEY LAND; JOKE WITH EACH OTHER

AIRPORT, CLEVELAND, O., July 6.—(INS)—Despite exhaustion, Byron K. Newcomb and Roy L. Mitchell were in high spirits when they landed early today after setting a new endurance refueling record. They joked with each other about incidents that occurred during the flight of the "City of Cleveland."

"Mitch was the dirty pilot," Newcomb told International News Service. "I took a bath aboard the plane every day we were in the air, but Mitch didn't take a bath once." And Mitchell didn't deny it.

Newcomb said they were shocked by news of the death of their friend Waldo Robey, young air mail pilot who was killed last Sunday morning when his plane crashed in the fog near Columbus.

"We felt pretty badly about it," said Newcomb. "Waldo was a fine pilot and a chap worth knowing."

News of Robey's death was kept from the fliers until last Tuesday when they had insisted that newspapers, which they had not seen since Sunday, be sent aboard.

"FLIGHT NOT STUNT; PROVES AVIATION HAS PASSED INFANCY," STINSON SAYS

International News Service Staff Correspondent.

CLEVELAND, July 6.—"This flight wasn't just a stunt," declared Eddie Stinson, noted aviator and designer of the endurance record monoplane, "City of Cleveland," in an interview today. "It was a flight to prove that aviation has passed the stage of infancy."

"In the first place," said Stinson, who flew here several days ago to watch the progress of the flight, "this flight has proved the durability and reliability of the engine."

"In the second place it proved that such a flight is not past the bounds of physical endurance, even though the boys were pretty well worn out when they came down. Newk and Mitch had flown a distance of approximately one-third the circumference of the earth at the equator."

"And in the third place, it proved that modern design and construction is such that any well built plane may remain in the air almost indefinitely."

Stinson said the army and navy had learned a valuable lesson from the endurance flights such as this. The flights demonstrate that in an emergency, he declared, a refueling plane could supply bombers, scout planes and observers with fuel hundreds of miles from the base.

Eddie Dowling Hurls Defi At Film Tradition

Initial Picture Plain Tale Without Customary Glitter and "Whoopie."

Eddie Dowling in "The Rainbow Man" A Paramount Picture

As a defiance to a seeming tradition of the screen, namely that a picture has to have a lot of Roman baths, roguish ladies, rascals, rowdy villains and rollicking heroisms to make it a "clicker" we have "The Rainbow Man," built upon a simple story, plus Eddie Dowling and his singing.

This human and unextravagant theme "got them" in New York, when it premiered there last April, and it didn't take veteran showmen very long to tell George W. Weeks and O. E. Goebel, its producers, that their first talking, singing venture was "in." At the Ceramic theater three days, starting Monday—Adv

Major League Pennant Races

Reservations for the 1929 world series will be made at Forbes field, Pittsburgh, and Shibe park, Philadelphia, if an old saying in baseball is true, for Donie Bush's Pirates and Connie Mack's Athletics were the leaders in the National and American leagues on July 4—the half-way point in the respective races.

Nine and one-half games ahead of the New York Yankees, who, in bygone years, were the pace-setters, the Mack club was leading the Barnardian loop race on Independence day, while the Heydler circuit dust was being raised by the Pittsburgh team which, however, is only a half game in front of the fast-stepping Chicago Cubs.

However, the Pennsylvanians should not feel too secure in their positions. Miller Huggins, who has made a practice of winning pennants, is not losing weight over the fact that he is trailing in the American league chase. With Babe Ruth back in the game, the Yankees certainly are not out of the running. And, too, the St. Louis Browns must be given some consideration.

In the National league race, one day's play would upset the standing. Joe McCarthy, who never quits until the third out is called in the ninth inning, has his boys stepping at a lively gait, while not far behind him the New York Giants and St. Louis Cardinals are placed.

With nearly three months' playing time still on the books, the unexpected may happen. A streak of hard luck would prove disastrous for any first division club, and veterans in the game are not unmindful of the fact that the Boston Braves went from last place on one Fourth of July to the National league pennant and the world's championship against the Philadelphia Athletics not many years ago.

Perhaps it will be wise to defer filing reservations for the October classic until later in the season.

Collegiate Flivver Again

The same twist of human nature that prompts the Easter hobo parade in New York City is responsible for collegiate flivvers and their erratic drivers. It is an attitude which says, "I'll be different even if I have to make myself ridiculous."

If all these whimsical vehicles were owned by persons too poor to afford anything better, it could be said that they were not collegiate flivvers but poverty flivvers. True, some of the most typical collegiate flivvers are not designed with that term in mind, but are merely the antiquated vehicles of some out-of-the-way farmer who hasn't caught up with the times. The operators of these vehicles attract attention through the harshness of necessity—not chance.

The collegiate flivver is usually by some oddity of construction or design to distinguish it from its country cousin—the ordinary antiquated flivver. If nothing else, its driver is dressed in the pink of fashion to distinguish himself from the mob. He wants to be different, but he doesn't want to be disagreeably conspicuous. A splash of red paint and a few pithy remarks engraved on the quivering body of the old hack do the trick.

One Ohio city proposal to drive these monstrosities off the street, but it was pointed out that as long as they were licensed by the state nothing could be done about it other than arrests on charge of reckless driving. The privilege of being a non-conformist still exists, but the privilege of operating a devil-wagon which is apt to be out of control a goodly share of the time should be denied on the streets.

One thing is apparent. Any accident in which one of these nondescript specimens of the genus automobilus is involved will inevitably be blamed on the weaker craft. Under-dog sympathy will be granted, but that will not save the collegiate flivver from disgrace. The moral is: paint up the old hack before you are arrested for being a college boy out for a ride in a struggle-buggy.

Criminals And Pacifism

It is a matter of some difficulty to decide which is the more refreshing; the pronouncement of the Missouri synod of the Lutheran church in national convention at Concordia college on pacifism, or that of the same body on the treatment of criminals.

Dr. William A. Maier, of St. Louis, spokesman for the synod, expressed the Lutheran position in these matters. Dr. Maier made plain that the synod is wholly against pacifism and out of all sympathy with the coddling of criminals and the ascribing of criminal acts and tendencies to new-fangled diseases.

"The church opposes organized efforts to abolish the death penalty, because these efforts are opposed to the teachings of the Bible both in the Old and New Testaments," Dr. Maier declared. "It is apparent that moves toward the softening of law have been conducive to increased lawlessness. The Lutheran church has no sympathy for the fashionable and popular mode of coddling criminals."

Having presented his church's position on the treatment of criminals, Dr. Maier made its position on pacifism equally plain, stating that there is no tendency toward a "milk-fed pacifism" among Lutherans, citing scripture in defense of the church's position. He held the "No More War" clamor, together with the scrapping of national defenses, to be procedure inconsistent with Biblical admonition and national prudence.

"Why cry 'peace' when there is no peace?" is the question he said the Lutheran church asked.

"The Lutheran church deplores war and the unspeakable sorrow which comes in its wake," the doctor continued. "The very thought of brutal carnage must be repulsive to every Christian who knows and feels Christ's admonition that we love one another. But any civil government is obliged to protect the lives and property of its citizens, and for this reason the Lutheran church takes the position that war, abhorrent as it is, may be justifiable and necessary."

There may be, and doubtless are, many in and out of church organizations who will not agree with the Lutheran position on either the treatment of criminals or on the subject of possible justifications of war. But even they must admire the courage of this Lutheran body in standing out against the present-day trend its opposition thereto.

HASKIN DAILY LETTER

By Frederick J. Haskin

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 6.—When Gen. W. S. Hancock, Democratic candidate for president in the campaign of 1880, declared in a newspaper interview that the tariff was a "local affair," the statement, according to contemporary reports, was greeted with a "roar of amusement" from the entire country. Garfield supporters were greatly aided in carrying him to victory by the derision which the old general's statement evoked.

Yet, half a century later, the tariff has developed into precisely that—a local issue.

Even before the famous statement of Gen. Hancock was made, the same idea had been expressed. In 1872 when the Liberal-Republicans nominated Horace Greeley, the famous editor, their platform declared that it recognized the existence of "honest but irreconcilable differences of opinion" on the matter of the tariff and went on record in favor of leaving the matter to the congressional districts. In other words, they too defined the tariff as a local issue. Grant, a protectionist, decisively defeated Greeley but the local character of the tariff, then recognized by him, has proved a persistent idea despite the many intervening years of high tariff rates. The bill now before congress is the highest protective tariff ever proposed but the wide difference of opinion, "honest but irreconcilable," show with cold clarity how sectional and, indeed, local the issue really is.

The World war and the economic events which followed in its train worked such tremendous changes in the geography of American industry as to alter fundamental productive conditions in all parts of the country with resultant change of party views on the tariff. No longer can one be sure that a Democrat is a low tariff man or a Republican a protectionist.

This development raises the speculation of whether it is possible that a time may come when the various sections of the country will settle their own tariff affairs on the basis of being purely local issues. As matters now stand, every locality is doing its best to induce congress to protect pet products with a tariff which will keep out foreign competition and insure high prices.

The big general changes are the most notable. New England for more than a century was the textile center of the nation and for that and other reasons wanted tariff protection. But the textile industry has been migrating to the south, notably to North Carolina. North Carolina also now has a large furniture industry and the development of water power there has fostered other manufactures. The result is that this section, traditionally Democratic, has become a stronghold of tariff protection.

Sugar in the past has caused the only conspicuous exception to old time Democratic tariff principles. One state, Louisiana, for long has favored a high tariff on sugar and has made strong Republican showings at times for that reason. Then the beet sugar industry, an innovation, developed in the west. Another plea came for sugar protection against Cuba and other low production countries. It was provided, with the result that production increased. The beet sugar industry has spread over fifteen states and now there is a strong high tariff party arising from that industry alone.

Another invasion of the old South occurred when the steel business made a start at Birmingham. When one industry gains a solid foothold, others are likely to spring up. Alabama is becoming protectionist.

New England, of course, being given over almost wholly to manufactures, wants a high tariff. New York is in much the same position with a strong added plea for protection for the dairy industry. Pittsburgh and points both east and west must have steel protected and there is scarcely anything on which the great workshop of the Middle West does not want a high tariff.

The west in general demands a high wheat tariff as well as stiff rates on livestock and all other agricultural products. The mining states must have high rates on ores to insure prices high enough to warrant the working of more mines.

Florida and California want protection for their citrus fruits. The Northwest wants flaxseed protected although but the merest fraction of the nation's requirements is produced here.

So it goes all over the country. The tariff is unquestionably a local issue if one is to judge by the reasons advanced for placing high rates on certain products.

Q. Why are married men not allowed to enlist for army aviation? C. K.

A. The United States air corps says that the reason that married men are not allowed to enter the army aviation school in Texas is first, because there are no quarters as yet built to accommodate the wives and families of such men, and second, the course is of such a strenuous nature that a single man has all he can do to keep up his work without having the added responsibility of a family.

Q. How many houses were there in ancient Athens? S. W.

NEW YORK Day By Day

By O. O. McIntyre.

NEW YORK, July 6.—One of the stories, unconfirmed, but labeled "absolutely true" which has been convulsing the drawing rooms for many weeks refused to die. Several newspapers and a tabloid or so have been trying to smoke it out but a society lady who is the central figure denies it vehemently.

It has proved extremely embarrassing as you shall see. The lady has been frequently in the limelight as a result of her sly efforts to publicize herself. Not particularly beautiful or talented she married a gentleman whose family name is ill-famous. This enhances her value as "copy."

As the story goes, a polished gentleman called to secure her consent to take a blindfold test in a cigarette ad vertising hoopla. The lady with becoming reluctance finally agreed to join the other "celebrities" who had submitted to the foolishness.

An appointment was made to make the test in her own drawing room, the subtle suggestion made that this would furnish a far more aristocratic background than the set scenery of a studio. The lady donned an imperial gown and a few rare jewels.

She arranged to sit in a throne-like chair with a famous painting hanging back of her. No detail that would prove photographically impressive was overlooked. The "committee" in braided afternoon coats and the delegation of photographers arrived with great eclat.

The lady was securely blindfolded and a slyly selected gentleman gave her one cigarette after another to light, puff and name there was dirty work at the cross roads. Two of the committee and a photographer tipped out of the room and up the grand staircase.

They plundered her bedroom of all jewels she was not wearing, took a large sum of money, much silverware and several paintings. Then with the easily acquired swag they were joined by the other for a fast sneak to a waiting auto. The lady was still trying to decide which cigarette was which.

Several actresses in recent years have tried to achieve the professional distinction of being known by a single name. But the idea didn't spark and most of them immediately faded from the picture. Imported stars with single names from Europe also fail to click. Only those who have enormous theatrical fame are privileged to be known in the manner of Bernhardt and Mansfield, it seems.

A columnist has no trouble, however, in becoming known by a single name. As quick as that he is hailed as "sap," "boob" or "nut."

Boxing has gone Four Hundred. One of the Biddies manages a pug. The weekly fights at the Garden have a row or so of debutants flowered in orchids who screech with delight in watching swings from the ankle. Three boxing instructors have opened studios on Madison avenue to teach aristocratic young bloods. And almost every dawn some society squirt is trundled feet up out of a night club after nurturing the silly conceit that a few boxing lessons entitle him to get fresh with a girl.

The waiting lines at New York movie houses now have queue entertainers like those entertaining about the lobbies of London theaters. In New York they are mostly singers and seedy magicians but one Sunday recently two acrobats appeared in spangled tights for a series of flip flops and collected quite a sum.

Gaga Note: If that dog shop on West 47th street doesn't take those two frisky Scottie puppies and the sad eyed Boston out of their window they'll have to put a certain columnist away again.

Writes Miss L.: "Must you columnists have facts to fill your space?" No, ma'am, we just make it up as we go along.

YOUR HEALTH

An Ounce of Prevention Is Worth A Pound of Cure.

By Dr. Royal S. Copeland.

It used to be that sunburned girls were seen only in the Summer time. Now these moderns are sunburned the year round!

Sunburn as it comes from the rays of the sun is painful. It may even result in scars. The sun's rays have certain chemical rays of an irritating and scarring nature.

The texture of peoples' skin differs. Some have very thin, sensitive skins. These are the ones who suffer most from sunburn. Others have coarser skins, which tan but do not burn. The mode of the moment is the sunburned skin. All women are anxious to have this healthy outdoor appearance. I am in full accord with this idea.

If you cannot take time to go outdoors and enjoy the sunshine which gives you that healthy look, then some of these health aides are all right. When you glance in the mirror and see yourself white, pale faced, you look glum. If your color is good you respond to your appearance and feel better.

Beauty aids, whether they be sun-tan powder, a bit of color or other accessory add much to your peace of mind. There are wonderful lamps which apply controlled light to the skin and tan it.

You should take excellent care of the skin, no matter what your natural color may be. Find the soap that agrees with you and then wash the skin thoroughly with plenty of soap and water. If the skin is dry you may need cold cream or some other lotion.

Old age shows first in the changed appearance of the skin. If you would have eternal youth guard the beauty which lies in the well-cared for skin. Good looks are more than a matter of mere appearance. There can be no question there is a psychology in it. If you look good to yourself, that Don't Pluck Flowers There.

Tourists will save money and escape annoyance by not plucking wild flowers when traveling through West Virginia. That state has a new law proposed by nature lovers. It prohibits the plucking of wild bloom along the highways, and within 100 feet of the highways, without the written consent of the owners of the property. Violation of the law, or the transportation of wild bloom or shrubs, is punishable by a fine of $100. Instructions have been given state troopers and police officials to enforce the law vigorously.

This looks like a law camouflaged with a good purpose and intended to produce revenue. The right of the state to protect the wild flowers is unquestioned and all sane efforts in enforcing that right are to be commended. The ugliness that is shown by the flower pluckers each season is aggravating and deserves sound rebuke. But the $100 fine is ridiculous. It looks like a trap, set for the unfortunate tourist, and, if that is the case, the state is in little business in seeking to prey on the purses of its visitors. The law, as it stands today, is the product of poor thinking, or the result of sordid commercialism. One is indefensible, the other indecent.

One state not far from West Virginia passed a law a few years ago providing a fine of $10 for any driver or passenger who passed over a railway grade crossing without coming to a full stop. It was proposed as a safety measure. It was, in fact, a raid on tourists. Roadside courts were in operation, deputy constables were near the principal grade crossings, arrests were numerous, fines abundant, revenues were replenished, the raid was a great success for a time. It is such unwise laws and burdensome fines that help make the administration of justice appear contemptible. But, so long as that law is in force, let the tourists through West Virginia have a care.—Ohio State Journal.

Week By Week
With Apologies to O. O. McIntyre

James S. Rayl, long a liveryman and horse dealer and later a garage owner in South Market street, gets a great deal of enjoyment out of primaries and general elections. For years his place of business has been an open forum for the traveling public and candidates find their way there as naturally as do the hungry into an eating emporium.

And all of them leave their cards. Many of them likewise contribute pictures and the largest pieces of campaign material. Rayl treats them all with even courtesy. For several campaigns now he has brought into play the doors leading into his establishment. On them he places these cards, circulars and pictures. Then he opens the doors in such a position that all passing or stopping in the covered section before them may see plainly who the men standing for office may be.

Comment on the various seekers of office are thus made with some illumination by many of the voters.

Rayl, however, functions like a person who has no favorites. He contributes the space on the doorway, tells what he may know of any of the men and women that may be running and leaves voters to form their own opinions.

Just now the doors are getting their earlier consignment of notices.

Harry W. Schroeder, a former resident of Pleasant Heights, spent a few days here recently renewing friendships of another day and attending to some private business.

He is returning to live in Steubenville after a five-year residence in Columbus. He came to East Liverpool in 1905 and left about 1913.

Schroeder is a native of Cincinnati. He witnessed the early activities of former President W. H. Taft, the late Governor Foraker and Harmon. Speaker Nicholas Longworth, Charles P. Taft and the one-time "Boss" Cox of that city.

The spectacle of William "Bill" Hardie and William Scraggs both now of East Palestine, together in East Liverpool for a few ours as they occasionally are seems to draw back the curtain on the past in East Liverpool and suggest a bit of unusual activity in Elkdom. Both a few years ago were active in the circles of this lodge in East Liverpool and both became well known in state and national gatherings of its membership. Scraggs, who had a signal part in the building of the Elks' building, West Fifth street, used to attend all gatherings of the organization. He was wont on such occasions to have himself covered with badges that indicated various departments of the order. Indeed, a picture of himself thus adorned, used to be one of the appealing decorations on the walls of the living quarters of the lodge.

The Rev. J. Harry Cotton, D. D., formerly of East Liverpool, can now write his name while functioning as the pastor of the Broad Street Presbyterian church in Columbus. He was recently given the degree of "D. D." by Wooster university. Honors are coming rapidly to this young minister. Hardly had he been domiciled as pastor of a church over which a former moderator of the General Assembly had presided over for more than 30 years when he was elected trustee of the Princeton Theological seminary at Princeton, N. J. And he has hardly become settled in his life work. In some respects he looms in the ministerial world as does Lindbergh in that of aviation.

R. L. E. Edmonston, proprietor of the Travelers' hotel here, just back from a several weeks' trip to California, is relating his unique experience of having fished for lake trout just off the Nevada state line on June 1 with some four inches of snow about him.

To reach the spot he crossed some 300 miles of desert in rapid time to dodge adverse weather conditions. En route he saw fully 500 rabbits. Once, hunting a bit, he bagged 20 one day.

Going west by the southern route he returned the northern one, touring a

"ALIBI" FEATURED ON STATE BILL

Marking the most forward step yet made in the new art of talking and sound pictures, "Alibi," United Artists' all-dialogue under-world thriller, is coming to the State theater Monday.

No motion picture in recent years has aroused as much enthusiasm from audiences as "Alibi," for it gives an entirely new conception of sound film technique, offers the most thrilling plot of any underworld story, and presents the greatest array of stage favorites ever assembled in one production.

"Alibi," produced and directed by Roland West, who has to his credit such successes as "The Bat," "The Unknown Purple," "The Monster" and "The Dove," is based on the stage play, "Nightstick," which enjoyed long runs in New York, Los Angeles and other cities.

"Alibi," adapted for the screen by C. Gardner Sullivan, is described as a powerful story of crooks, police, gay night life and love. Although heralded as a melodrama, the picture contains some of the biggest laughs of the year, and also gives the world a couple of sensational new musical hits, written especially for the production.

Among the players in "Alibi" are Chester Morris, former New York stage star, whose performance in his first picture may make him a screen star overnight; Eleanor Griffith, another New York star who has never before appeared on the screen; Pat O'Malley, Mae Busch, Harry Stubbs, Regis Toomey, Purnell B. Pratt, Keran Cripps, Irma Harrison, James Bradbury, Jr., Al Hill, De Witt Jennings and Elmer Ballard.

CERAMIC BOOKS "RAINBOW MAN"

Since her appearance in the New York presentation of the now famous Eddie Dowling all-talking, all-singing picture, "The Rainbow Man," coming to the Ceramic theater, Monday, Marian Nixon, favorite of the silent screen for more than five years, has been heralded as "the Mary Pickford of the talkies."

Critics have variously described Marian's speaking voice and great talking acting as "great," "gorgeous" and "pleasingly intelligent."

The rave notices all seem to agree that Marian is a "natural" for the talkies.

"The Rainbow Man" deals with the struggles of a young minstrel trouper to rise to Broadway fame. He meets the girl while stopping at her father's hotel in the provinces. They fall in love, but he is ejected from the hotel and from the show when he is found in a love scene with the girl after her father had forbidden her the company of actors.

Later he is allowed to join his old troupe and it is while they are playing a small city near the girl's town a year later that he sees her in the audience while he is singing his song, "Sleepy Valley." He breaks the song and pleads with her for a return of her love, as the audience gazes, thinking it is all part of the show. But it is very real to Eddie and Marian and the audience does not realize that it is genuine love-making until Sam Hardy, producer of the minstrel show, steps forward and tells them the truth as the curtain falls about the romantic pair.

REGINALD DENNY AT AMERICAN

Reginald Denny, the popular screen comedian, is to be seen and heard here Monday, when his latest talking screen production, "His Lucky Day," will be shown in the American theater.

The picture is said to be the best ever made by this well-liked Universal star. Denny, with a long stage training behind him, is proving to be an ideal talk-film star, and to his comedy gage and situations, he adds comedy lines, dialogue and indications that make his new comedies veritable laugh riots.

"His Lucky Day" was directed by Eddie Cline, from an original story by John B. Clymer and Gladys Lehman. Pretty Lorraine DuVal, a newcomer in heroine roles, is the feminine appeal in this production. She is very attractive and has a pleasing voice.

This story deals with the escapades of a young insurance man who is trying to sell twin insurances to his prospective father-in-law. A band of society crooks embroil the plot and call for fast action and unusual misadventure. The cast includes Otto Harlan, Eddie Phillips, Cissy Fitzgerald, Harvey Clark and Tom O'Brien.

ARMY SERGEANT DIES IN FALL

Denver Man Plunges Through Columbus Hotel Window.

POTTSVILLE, Pa., July 6.—(INS.)—Sergeant Patrick Seibolt, attached to the U. S. medical corps at Denver, died early today at the Warren hospital here of a fractured skull which was suffered from a fall from a hotel window to the street below last night.

Sergeant Seibolt arrived here last night as official escort for the body of a Pottsville soldier and engaged a room at the hotel. His body was unharmed when he fell from the window and fell through the window.

The low window sill was thought to have been responsible for the accident. The sill was not knee high and Seibolt, unaware of his danger, is believed to have stumbled against the screen which failed to prevent his fall.

Seibolt was rushed to the hospital where he died on the operation table.

In the afternoon, Rev. L. C. Andre, of the First Free Methodist church of Cleveland, preached. He stressed the need of the Holy Ghost. "The Holy Spirit is a gift which all may have," he said. Thus lifted to a plane in which one is living a righteous life such a person exudes a wonderful influence."

Chesbrough College Agent Here.

Among the arrivals during the day was the Rev. M. S. Benn, of North Chili, N. Y., financial agent of the A. M. Chesbrough Seminary and Junior college of that city. It is the only eastern school of the Free Methodist church.

The Rev. Mr. Benn was accompanied by two of the institution's pupils, LaVerne Rinehold and Dewey Yale. They came here from Uniontown, Pa., where last week they attended a camp meeting of the Uniontown district at which the Rev. L. S. Hoover of Tyone, Pa., was the evangelist.

The Rev. Mr. Lawson announced last night that his morning theme to-morrow will be "The Final Hour of Service of God."

Singing during the camp meeting is being directed by the Rev. E. J. Atkinson of New Brighton, Pa. He was several years ago a resident of East Liverpool.

The Rev. Mr. Benn, it is expected, will be assigned to preach during one of the services the forepart of next week.

The affairs of the camp meeting are in the hands of an executive committee of which the district elder, the Rev. D. W. Rose, of New Brighton, Pa., is the chairman and the Rev. Brookes Morgan, of the Oakland church, of this city, is secretary-treasurer. The other members are the Rev. S. E. West and Lloyd Davis, of this city; the Rev. E. J. # OHIOAN WHO ONCE TURNED DOWN $200,000 OFFER, DIES PAUPER

HAMILTON, O., July 6.—(INS.)—S. A. D. Springer, 71, who was once offered $200,000 for a formula of a steel alloy, is dead here today—a pauper. Arrangements are being made by the county to bury him.

Springer, earlier in his life, had found a formula for a steel alloy, and was offered $200,000 and a royalty of five cents a pound for it by the Associated Steel manufacturers, Cincinnati.

But Springer thought it was worth $100,000 and refused the offer.

A railroad crash soon after seriously injured Springer and he suffered a loss of memory. His formula was gone.

He died yesterday in the county infirmary here—a pauper.

tained flight, but Newcomb and I were not."

Both airmen showed obvious traces of the terrific strain undergone during the seven days they circled above the Cleveland airport, plunging through thunderstorms and occupying themselves at frequent intervals with the nerve-racking task of refueling while in flight.

Crowd of 75,000 Cheers.

Pushing, jostling and struggling against the ropes thrown up about the airport, a crowd of 75,000 persons set up a deafening cheer as the "City of Cleveland" descended, and the mob made a wild rush to acclaim the fliers. They were held back by police reserves, however, until Mitchell and Newcomb could be helped from their plane and rushed into the airport of fliers for a much-needed rest.

Neither flier suffered any permanent ill effect of the long vigil in the air, but both were so nearly exhausted they could scarcely stand alone when they stepped out of the plane.

To the surprise of many, their hearing had not been affected. They said they had no trouble hearing everything that was said to them when they landed, despite the fact that they spent more than a week in the small cabin directly behind the nine-cylinder Wright whirlwind motor.

The crowd, which had assembled at the airport early last night to watch Newcomb and Mitchell set the new record, broke through police lines in places and swarmed out onto the field, making it difficult to escort the men and their plane safely into the protection of the hangar.

Fliers' Wives Greet Them.

Both fliers' wives were on hand to greet them with a big hug and innumerable kisses when they stepped from the plane.

"We are so glad to have them back with us," said Mrs. Newcomb.

"We are the proudest wives in the world," said Mrs. Mitchell. "Of course, we knew that Newt and Mitch would break the record. It certainly is good to have them back safely with us."

Otto Leisy, president of the Stewart Aircraft company, sponsor of the flight, was so jubilant over the success of his boys that he ran up to the fliers and planted resounding kisses on the cheeks of both fliers.

The fliers and their party occupied an entire floor of a downtown hotel. Their party included their wives, the refueling crew, the ground crew and H. L. Underwood, their "manager."

Newcomb and Mitchell arrived at the hotel about 1:30 a. m. They were sitting on a divan, inspecting the barograph and talking to Eddie Stinson when Newcomb fell asleep. The barograph will be sent to Washington as the official record of the flight.

Mitchell Was Pilot.

Mitchell usually piloted the "City of Cleveland" while Newcomb stood up through a hole cut in the top of the fuselage and caught the refueling hose or reached for the supply bags dangling from the refueler. Newcomb's hands were badly cut and bruised.

A heavy beard covered the sun-tanned faces of both fliers. Deep lines streaked their faces and swollen eyes told of many sleepless hours spent in the air. Despite the hardships they have just undergone, both fliers were willing to do it all over again if their record is broken soon.

"Suppose Mendell and Reinhart out in California break your new record, what will you do?" they were asked.

"Why, that's easy," broke in Mitchell, "we'd just go right back up there and set another new one ourselves, and I'll bet we could do it with the same motor."

"Sure we could," the groggy Newcomb assented.

Newcomb and Mitchell retired to their rooms shortly before 2 a. m., and began their first night's sleep in a bed in over a week. They were not to be awakened until they had caught up with lost sleep.

Fliers Plan Tour.

Their future plans were indefinite at this stage. They hope, however, to go on a tour of the country, but just what for the tour will take has not been decided. Much depends upon whether their new record is broken soon by other endurance fliers.

City Manager William R. Hopkins said he hoped the people of Cleveland would make the fliers a substantial

HUNDRED BILLION DOLLAR BANK HINTED IN WORLD PEACE MOVE

WASHINGTON, July 6.—A hundred-billion-dollar world bank, looming as a financial rock of Gibraltar against all existing financial institutions, may grow out of the treasury set up by the allied reparations commission for exchanging German reparations payments, it was estimated here today.

Already hinted at by Thomas E. Lamont, international financier and reparations expert, Senator William H. King (D) of Utah, today recommended the project as certain to promote world trade and international peace. He said the benefits of such a gigantic world financial institution would be fabulous and that the United States would reap the greatest reward because of her tremendous international commerce.

The present international bank, just established by the reparations commission, will receive bonds from Germany in foreign exchange and in currency, and make distribution to the creditor allied nations. Lamont already has hinted that this institution can develop into a real world bank.

Hands Unseen

New Mystery Story of "Gray Phantom,"

Loveable Outlaw.

By Herman Landon

Copyright by Street and Smith Corporation.

As far as any one could see at present, Bell was the only person who had an opportunity to commit the murder. It was a forceful argument, but it was hampered in with contradictions. If Bell would testify, why had he told a story so damning to his case? Why had he not altered it in certain respects, particularly with reference to the inaccessibility of the room? With Craig dead it would have been easy for him to leave a loop-hole in his narrative that would offer a theory as to how the murderer entered the room.

He could have appeared less certain, for instance, that no one had slipped past him while he stood in the doorway looking for the person who had delivered the three knocks. But Bell had stoutly denied such possibilities, and to Vanady this was a strong argument in his favor. Yet it was conceivable of course, that Bell, even if guilty, had been subtle enough to tell the kind of story that only a man with a clear conscience can afford to tell.

Temporarily dismissing the question of Bell's guilt or innocence from his mind, Vanady let his imagination carry the scene to its conclusion. As nearly as Bell had been able to fix the time, it must have been about half past twelve when Craig pointed the pistol at him. Bell, at first scarcely realizing that his life was in danger, had tried to reason with the fear-maddened man. Craig had refused to listen to arguments. Bell had seen a look of insanity in his face. Then an interruption had come in the form of a repetition of the three knocks on the door. Bell, hastening to open it, had looked briefly down the corridor, but at the older man's request he had once more locked and bolted the door and resumed his seat. Then there had been still another surprise, the most dramatic of them all. It had come with a suddenness that staggered even Bell's hardened nature. A voice had spoken, a firm masculine voice, but whence it had come no one could tell. In sepulchral accents it had told Craig that his time was at hand. Then there had been an interval of stillness, lasting perhaps a moment or two, and then a well-aimed missile—a heavy inkwell, as it afterward appeared—had sent Bell into oblivion.

What had happened after that? Nothing was definitely known except that Craig had been lying dead on the floor when Miss Wayne and the servants broke in. William had remained at the door while one of the other servants turned on the light. Acting with a presence of mind that one would not have expected from his stolid appearance, he had taken in the scene at a glance, holding his post at the door while the others made a search. It had seemed to William that, if a murder had occurred, the slayer must be still in the room. But the search had failed to reveal a trace of a murderer and William was certain that no one had passed him while he guarded the door. Neither could the culprit have escaped through the window, for the fastenings on both the window and the shutters were intact.

Vanady's mind came back to the insurmountable wall that seemed to block all speculations in that direction. Granting that Bell had told the truth, some one must have entered the room in an, as yet, inconceivable fashion. Who—and how?

Sitting in the chair Bell had occupied on the night of the murder, Vanady glanced up at the clock. Seven minutes past twelve. No sound was heard in the room save the hitherto ticking of the clock and the snapping of the logs.

"Who?" he asked again. "And how?" By a circuitous route his mind went back to Stanhope. It was rather odd, all things considered, that the lawyer should have placed such marked emphasis on the question of whether Craig had seen his murderer face to face. It was a useless speculation, having certain dramatic elements, but devoid of practical interest.

It was curious that such an inconsequential matter should have excited the lawyer so profoundly that his hand trembled when he pointed at the chalk marks. Lawyers, as Vanady had observed, were not usually so excitable. And Stanhope, judging from what little he had seen of him, had a rather phlegmatic temperament.

As for the Medusa's head on the lawyer's arm, it was either utterly meaningless, or else it had a profound significance in relation to the mystery of Tuckaway Camp. If meaningless, why had Stanhope shown such agitation when he realized that he had carelessly exposed it to Vanady's view? On the other hand, if the tattooed design meant all that it might mean, then—

But Vanady's speculations stopped there. Frey was dead, so a conclusion that would otherwise have seemed inevitable was by reason of that fact clearly out of the question. Yet the possibility continued to tantalize his imagination. There was a chance, if only a very slight one, that Frey was not dead, that the report of his death had been incorrect. It would not have been the first time that a person had reappeared on the scene of life after his supposed death. It was possible, though far removed from the range of ordinary probabilities, that such a thing had happened to Frey. Granting that it had, it seemed quite natural to suppose that—

Again Vanady held his imagination in leash. There was a temptation to give it free way, to leap all the hurdles that logic and reason put in the way, but something held him back. Moreover, even if his fantastic suspicion should prove true, it did not explain how the murderer had entered the room.

The fire was burning low again, and evidently the night was growing colder, for there was a chill in the air. Vanady put two more logs on the andirons, glanced at the clock again, noted that it was a quarter past 12 and, feeling no desire for sleep, sat down. He was thankful to William for having provided him with an ample supply of wood. The chair was comfortable and the fire was emitting a grateful warmth. If he could only arrange his mental processes along an orderly line! In only the Medusa's head he had seen on the lawyer's arm would not constantly insinuate itself into his mind and divert his thoughts into realms of wild speculation! It only—

In an instant he was on his feet, gazing fixedly at the door. A sharp rap sounded, then a second, finally a third. Then silence.

In three leaps Vanady reached the door—turned the key, flung open the door, slipped the bolt back, turned the key, flung open the door. A chilling draft swept his face as he stared into the dark corridor. A few hours ago there had been a light at the farther end, but now there was only an indefinite stretch of blackness. He thought that a dark shape had darted out of sight down the corridor just as he opened the door, but it must have been only an optical illusion produced by the sudden change from the lighted room to the dark corridor.

He stepped back into the room, knowing that further search would not only be futile, but also that he must not leave the door unguarded. There was also a question in his mind as to whether the knocking might not have been a fatuous prank on the part of Bell or Culigore, either of whom might have yielded to the temptation of playing a harmless joke on their unofficial colleague. In any event, there was nothing for him to do but remain in the room and await developments, if any were to come.

"They came with a rush that left him momentarily dazed and definitely disabled his mind of the thought that he was the victim of a jest. As he stood facing the door, turning the key in the lock and slipping the bolt back into the slot, the room suddenly went dark. Blackness fell over him like a suddenly descending blanket. Directly in front of the fireplace was a fluctuating sheen, partly obscured by the fender, but the remainder of the room was dark.

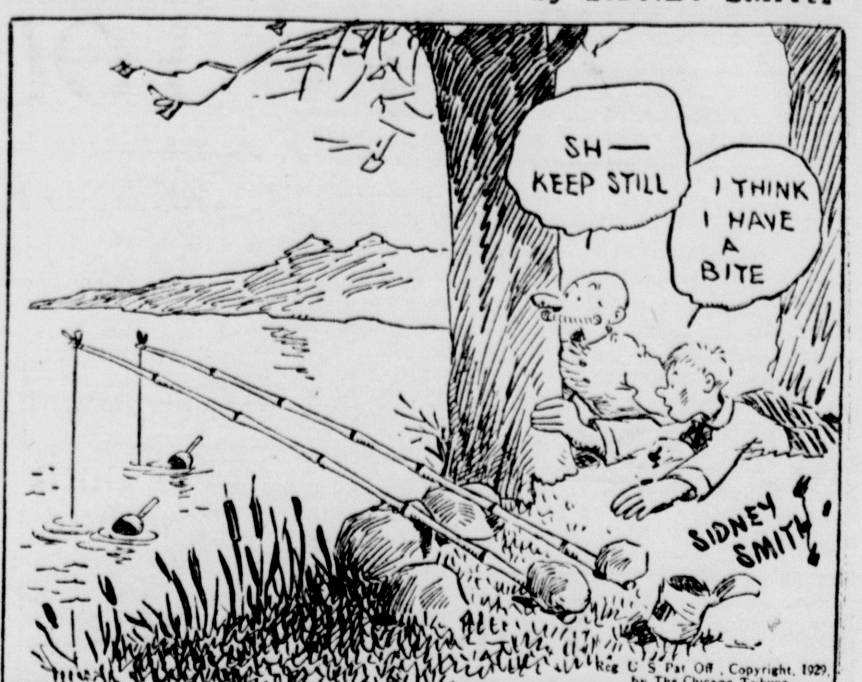

In an instant, gripping the pistol in his pocket, he whirled round and started forward.

"Stay right where you are, Vanady," said a voice, speaking in a curious, chantlike tone that would have made it impossible to recognize it even if he had known the speaker. "It is not safe for you to advance another step. Remember what happened to Craig."

Vanady drew in his steps, not because he was impressed by the warning, but in an effort to locate the direction from which the voice came. He had a vague impression that the speaker was standing in the black shadows at the other side of the room not far from the chalk marks. The electric light switch was on that side, almost in the center of the wall. He hesitated, and then he remembered his flashlight. He pulled it out of his pocket, snapped on the light, and projected a narrow, white trail across the floor.

CHESTER DOWNS KATIES, 4-3, IN CHAMPIONSHIP TILT

Ohio Potters Protest Victory As Result of Play On Final Putout

Mike Cebula Does Turn on Mound, Relieving Springer in Sixth; Stoffel Twirls Great Game; Connors, McConnell Star in Field.

PLAYING errorless ball behind the pitching of, first, Earl Springer and then Mike Cebula, the former minor leaguer, running the bases smartly and fighting every inch of the way, the Chester News club of the Inter-City league last night defeated K. T. K., 4-3, in the play-off for the first half championship of the circuit.

However, the game officially was protested by Manager Jack Orr of the Ohio Potters as a result of a play in the final inning which precipitated the final putout and a scene of general confusion as darkness encircled the playing field at Newell park.

Orr charged interference with a K. T. K. base runner.

However, owing to the fact that Les McMath, manager of the Chester News, will be away for a week, no official action will be taken on the protest, pending his return.

The play in question happened in the midst of a K. T. K. rally which assumed threatening proportions, from the standpoint of the West Virginians.

The score was 4 to 2 going into the last half of the seventh. Mike Cebula, who had come in from left field to relieve Earl Springer who showed signs of faltering after having pitched brilliant ball for more than five innings, struck out the first two batters and it looked as though it was all over.

Eddie Bayley, third man up, cracked the first hit off Mike's delivery, a clean single to right. Coleman, next up, singled to middle. And McConnell came through with the third successive blow, a single to middle scoring Bayley.

Coleman rounded second as Wyatt, in middle, threw toward the plate. But Bayley was already across and Mike Cebula recovered the ball.

At this juncture, Coleman and Pete Cebula, Chester shortstop, collided as Coleman was taking to third. Coleman was sent sprawling on the ground. He scrambled to his feet, hesitated a moment, apparently doubtful as to the proper procedure, and then started back to second, sliding feet first into the keyhole sack as the ball arrived at the same point. Connors put the apple to him and Umpire Cox called Coleman out. It retired the side and ended the game.

Captain Eddie Bayley of the Katies protested vigorously and the potter manager carried the protest to Harry Shaw, umpire in chief. Words flew swiftly and for a few moments it looked as though there might be some knuckles tossed carelessly around the West Virginia scenery as players and spectators milled around the field.

Cebula declared he was cutting in to recover the ball in the infield. At any rate the umpires and club leaders will thrash it out at some future session.

Katies Take Lead.
The Katies took an early lead, getting a run across in the fourth. McConnell led off with a walk and advanced on Kinsey's single, scoring on a single to middle by Jack O'Brosky. But in the fifth the Chester nine more than overcame this tally when they scored four times, the lineup batting around.

Wyatt, first up, hit one on the ground to short and Bayley threw low to first. Wyatt being safe. Cox singled to right and Wyatt circled the bases. Kinsey pegged to the plate and the throw got by the catcher, Cox going to third.

Hunselman and Springer fanned in succession and it appeared as though the Katies might get out of it with a tie.

But Parsons beat out an infield hit to second, Cox being held at third, and Campbell was hit by a pitched ball.

In the meantime, as Springer struck out, Catcher Bourne pegged to third in an attempt to get Cox off the sack and the throw went several feet over O'Brosky's head, Cox scoring.

Connors Hits Timely.
Ty Connors then drove out a timely single to middle, scoring Parsons and Campbell, on M. Cebula's ground ball. Connors was forced at second.

The Katies had a glorious opportunity in the sixth but could make nothing more than one run out of it. Coleman led off with a free ticket!

Redbirds Lose 10th Straight

"St. Louis Blues" May Become City's Anthem.

NEW YORK, N. Y., July 6.—Word that St. Louis has adopted the famous "blues" as the city anthem is expected momentarily.

For the old town along the Mississippi is doing no little waiting these days now that the collapse of the Cardinals has added to its baseball miseries.

Last year's National league champions were smacked by the Phillies yesterday and in being smacked ran their string of defeats to 10. This leaves them just three games north of the soaring Robins in fourth place. It is reported that Cincinnati has moved over on the basement sofa to make room for the Cards if they fail to find some means of checking their heading descent.

In the only other major league game of the day the Indians staged a five-run rally in the well-known seventh to nose out the White Sox, 11 to 10.

Today's feature engagement in the National finds New York playing host to their most bothersome enemy, Brooklyn. The two clubs play a single game and then turn to slaving off a wholesale invasion of the west. The Giants, positive that they belong higher than third place, and unable to secure it by battling the eastern weaker sisters, are downright impatient for the stronger western outfits to arrive. The Reds come first, then the Cubs, Cardinals and Pirates.

The Yankees today begin their second tour of the western circuit, hoping that their return to native haunts will find them a good deal nearer the first place Athletics. They meet the Browns today—the same Browns they pretty well cleaned up on an earlier visit.

The Columbus Squires batted their way to a 10-3 victory over the Car barn nine last night at Patterson Field.

Scully's slugging featured the Squires' attack. Eck performed well in right garden for the car barn.

by a 3 to 0 score and Kansas City trounced Milwaukee, 10 to 3. Standings remained unchanged.

Which is a very brief way of portraying the none-too-exciting events in the pennant race yesterday, and which, incidentally, allows "pace" for a prediction which has been in the air for some time, but which dopsters are almost afraid to make.

St. Paul, some say, is scheduled to glide into second place ere long. Only .021 percent, or less than three games, separates the Saints from that coveted place.

Kansas City proved itself the first position team it is by the convincing triumph over Milwaukee, which is last place.

Minneapolis is second, and St. Paul is third.

Next in line come Indianapolis, Louisville, Columbus, Toledo and Milwaukee, in the same order in which they are mentioned.

Big Field Anticipated For Ohio Amateur Golf Tourney Next Week On Canton Course

Winner Gets Replica of Cox Trophy, Worth $250; Cash Prizes Total $600.

CANTON, O., July 6.—The thing which makes golf competition of the Ohio amateur championship an event of outstanding importance in amateur sports, is the tradition which has been built around the event. Renewal of the state tournament at Brookside Country club next week will mark the 26th consecutive year the Ohio golf championship has been staged.

There are 64 golf and country clubs in Ohio which are members of the Ohio State Golf association. Members of these clubs are eligible to compete in the tournament at Brookside, plus a selected list of non-members whom the state organization invites to participate. This usually brings out a field approximating 200 of the best talent in Ohio.

And these men are playing for golf trophies which no one can win outright, but which is engraved from top to bottom with names of state champions, their clubs and the dates upon which they went through to victory. This is the James M. Cox trophy, emblematic of the Ohio amateur golf championship.

Pro-amateur, Opening Event, Carded Monday; Match Play Will Start Thursday.

eran chief of the professional golfers, and Bertie Way of Cleveland, another old-timer among the instructors, and their amateur team-mates, leave the tee.

On Tuesday the first half of the 36-hole qualifier will be run off, and on Wednesday the last half of the qualifier. Match play rounds start Thursday morning and continue through Friday afternoon. This will bring the finals in all flights to Saturday, and 36 holes is called for to decide the flight winners and the state champion.

There will be four flights—titular and two lesser flights, and the consolation for those eliminated in the first round of the championship.

There is a 72-hole medal play competition programed for all non-qualifiers. This will be played Wednesday and Thursday—18 holes a day—and the total added to their qualifying rounds total. Then there is a driving competition, a putting contest, prizes for the best 15 holes medal each day, and for the best 72 holes of the tournament.

The state medalist, of course, will receive a prize.

"The Rainbow Man" the first picture in which Eddie Dowling, Broadway's favorite son, has ever appeared, is rich in tuneful melodies of the calmer, heart-stirring type sung by the star and others in the production, and it is based on a plot which deals with plain, home-loving, non-artificial folks.
